Re: Mega-dams to lose megawatts: Line loss increases with distance travelled. Reporter Mary Agnes Welch should have mentioned all the valuable agricultural land, livestock, families and farms the western route for Bipole III would affect, not to mention the power loss and the additional costs of building extra towers on the west side.

The negatives for the western route seem to far outweigh the positives. It is hard to believe that our current minister of Hydro, Rosann Wowchuk, was previously our minister of agriculture. Funny how one's views change when they change position.
